

ROUTLEDGE RESEARCH IN RACE AND ETHNICITY

Doing Violence, Making Race

Lynching and White Racial Group Formation in the U.S. South, 1882–1930

Mattias Smångs

Doing Violence, Making Race

In Doing Violence, Making Race Professor Smångs uses nuanced theoretical framing, sophisticated statistical analysis, and a thorough knowledge of the history of the American South to take the study of lynching and racial boundary formation to a higher level. As a result, Doing Violence, Making Race is a welcome addition to the growing literature on the shameful history of southern mob violence and its continuing influence on American society.

Stewart E. Tolnay, S. Frank Miyamoto Professor of Sociology, Department of Sociology, University of Washington, Seattle, USA

The subject of lynching has spawned a vast body of important research, but this research suffers from important blind spots and disjunctures.

By broadening the scope of research problem formulation, staking out new theoretical-analytical tracks, and drawing upon recent innovations in statistical methodology to analyze newer and more detailed data, Doing Violence, Making Race offers an innovative contribution to our understanding of this grim subject matter and its place within the broader history and sociology of US race relations. Indeed, this volume demonstrates how different forms of lynching fed off and into the formation of the racial group boundaries and identities at the foundation of the Jim Crow system. The book also demonstrates that as dominant white racial ideologies and conceptions took an extremist turn, lethal mob violence against African Americans increasingly assumed the form of public lynchings, serving to transform symbolic representations of blacks into social stigma and exclusion. Finally, Smångs also explores how public lynchings were expressive as well as generative of the collective white racial identity mobilized through the southern branch of the Democratic Party, whilst private lynchings were related to whites' interracial status and social identity concerns on the interpersonal level.

The most complete and complex scholarly treatment of this grim subject to date, this enlightening volume will be of interest to undergraduate and graduate students interested in areas such as Sociology, Political Science, History, Criminology/Criminal Justice, Anthropology, American Studies, African-American and Whiteness Studies.

Mattias Smångs is Assistant Professor of Sociology at Fordham University, USA.

Routledge Research in Race and Ethnicity

For a full list of titles in this series, please visit www.routledge.com

12 Race and the Origins of American Neoliberalism

Randolph Hohle

13 Experiences of Islamophobia

Living with Racism in the Neoliberal Era

James Carr

14 Immigration, Assimilation, and the Cultural Construction of American National Identity

Shannon Latkin Anderson

15 Blackness in Britain

Edited by Lisa Palmer and Kehinde Andrews

16 The End of Black Studies

Conceptual, Theoretical, and Empirical Concerns

Clovis E. Semmes

17 Contemporary African American Families

Achievements, Challenges, and Empowerment Strategies in the Twenty-First Century

Edited by Dorothy Smith-Ruiz, Sherri Lawson Clark and Marcia Watson

18 Return Migration and Psychosocial Wellbeing

Edited by Zana Vathi and Russell King

19 Mapping the New African Diaspora in China

Race and the Cultural Politics of Belonging

Shanshan Lan

20 Doing Violence, Making Race

Lynching and White Racial Group Formation in the U.S. South, 1882–1930

Mattias Smångs

Doing Violence, Making Race

Lynching and White Racial Group
Formation in the U.S. South,
1882–1930

Mattias Smångs

First published 2017
by Routledge
711 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10017

and by Routledge
2 Park Square, Milton Park, Abingdon, Oxon OX14 4RN

Routledge is an imprint of the Taylor & Francis Group, an informa business

© 2017 Mattias Smångs

The right of Mattias Smångs to be identified as the author of this work has been asserted by him in accordance with sections 77 and 78 of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reprinted or reproduced or utilised in any form or by any electronic, mechanical, or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publishers.

Trademark notice: Product or corporate names may be trademarks or registered trademarks, and are used only for identification and explanation without intent to infringe.

British Library Cataloguing-in-Publication Data

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

A catalog record for this book has been requested

ISBN: 978-1-138-67982-5 (hbk)

ISBN: 978-1-315-54464-9 (ebk)

Typeset in Times New Roman
by Apex CoVantage, LLC

Till min mamma

Taylor & Francis

Taylor & Francis Group

<http://taylorandfrancis.com>

Contents

List of figures	viii
List of tables	ix
Acknowledgments	x
1 Introduction	1
2 A Theoretical-Conceptual Framework of Group Formation and Intergroup Violence	15
3 From Slavery to Jim Crow: The Historical Context of Lynching	32
4 Lynching as Collective and Interpersonal Intergroup Violence	53
5 Lynching and the Making of the Jim Crow Color-line	71
6 Lynching and the Making of the Solid White South	89
7 Lynching, Interracial Status Competition, and Social White Identities	117
8 Lynching, Jim Crow, and Beyond	140
Methodological Appendix	151
Index	162

Figures

2.1	Ideal-Typical Models of Intergroup Violence	23
4.1	Time Trend of Public Lynchings and Their Precipitants in Georgia and Louisiana, 1882–1930	61
4.2	Time Trend of Private Lynchings and Their Precipitants in Georgia and Louisiana, 1882–1930	65
6.1	Marginal Effects of Collective White Racial Identity on Public Lynchings at Different Levels of Collective White Racial Identity in the Pre-disfranchisement and Post-disfranchisement Periods, 1890–1915	101
6.2	Marginal Effects of Number of Public Lynchings and Private Lynchings on Collective White Racial Identity at Different Prevailing Levels of Collective White Racial Identity	108

Tables

5.1	Lynchings of Blacks by Type and Alleged Offense, 1882–1889	79
5.2	Lynchings of Blacks by Type and Alleged Offense, 1890–1915	80
5.3	Lynchings of Blacks by Type and Alleged Offense, 1916–1930	80
5.4	Lynchings of Whites by Type and Alleged Offense, 1890–1915	81
6.1	Descriptive Statistics for County-Level Democratic Vote Returns in Presidential Elections in Georgia and Louisiana, 1888–1932	97
6.2	Event History Models of the Association between Collective White Racial Identity and Public Lynchings and Private Lynchings	100
6.3	Dynamic Panel Data Models of the Effect of Public Lynchings and Private Lynchings on Collective White Racial Identity, 1888–1916	106
6.4	Temporal Development of Time-Varying Coefficients in Model 3 in Table 6.2	116
6.5	Event History Model of the Association between Collective White Racial Identity and Private Lynchings, 1916–1930	116
7.1	Descriptive Statistics by Decade for Interracial Status Competition, White Occupational Status, and Black Occupational Status in Georgia and Louisiana, 1882–1930	126
7.2	Event History Models of the Association between Interracial Status Competition and Private and Public Lynchings, 1882–1930	128
7.3	Temporal Development of the Time-Varying Coefficient for Number of Prior Lynchings of Opposite Type in Models 1 and 3 in Table 7.2	132
7.4	Temporal Development of Time-Varying Coefficients in Models 1 and 3 in Table 7.2	139
A.1	Data Excerpt for Clay County, Georgia	158

Acknowledgments

This book would not have seen the light of day without three people. The book originated as my doctoral dissertation at Columbia University and without the interest in and encouragement of my dissertation project by my advisor, Peter Bearman, I would not have been able to complete it, or, for that matter, this book project. I would also not have been able to complete either the dissertation or the book project without E. M. Beck and Stewart Tolnay. Not only did they generously share their lynching event data and associated research notes with me, they have also throughout the years answered all and any of my various questions, ranging from data management issues to the different types of cotton grown in the post-Reconstruction South, with utmost patience and care. I am very grateful for the intellectual and moral support I have received from Peter, Woody, and Stew for this research all the way from initial idea to dissertation and from dissertation to book.

In researching and writing and rewriting this book, I have benefitted greatly from the advice and suggestions by Chad Borkenhagen, Janet Box-Steffensmeier, Evelyn Bush, Emily Erikson, Christine Fountain, Daniel Fridman, Aaron Gullickson, Marissa King, Ka-Yuet Liu, Sarah Lockhart, Debra Minkoff, Daniel Navon, Andrew Ritchey, Matthew Salganik, Charles Seguin, David Stark, Katherine Stovel, and Matthew Weinschenker.

Support for the research presented in this book was provided by a Fordham University Faculty Fellowship.

Parts of this book have appeared in “Doing Violence, Making Race: Southern Lynching and White Racial Group Formation,” American Journal of Sociology 121.5 (2016): 1329–74, and “Interracial Status Competition and Southern Lynching, 1882–1930,” Ethnic and Racial Studies 39.10: 1849–68.

1 Introduction

This book is about the perhaps most disturbing and complex instance of violence in the United States, namely the lynching of African American men, women, and children at the hands of white mobs in the South during the “lynching era,” circa 1880–1930.¹ The decades comprising the lynching era are usually referred to as the post-Reconstruction period. The end of the federal military occupation of former Confederate states during the Reconstruction period that followed the Civil War and return of control of southern state governments into the hands of southern whites marked the beginning of this period, and the onset of the Great Depression marked its end. During the post-Reconstruction period, southern whites reestablished an institutionalized system of racial domination and oppression of remarkable scale, scope, and durability that affected every aspect of southern life for decades to come. Colloquially termed “Jim Crow,” this system, founded upon the economic dispossession, political disempowerment, and social degradation of African Americans, reestablished the relationship between white domination and black subjugation in southern society that slavery had provided in antebellum times but that Confederate defeat in the Civil War and subsequent abolition of slavery had disrupted.

Jim Crow was, however, not a simple outgrowth or holdover from slavery. In the aftermath of the Civil War and Reconstruction, the future of southern race relations was not an entirely closed question with a predestined solution. While it was clear that the South that had existed before the war was and could be no more, it was much less clear what was going to take its place. One aspect of this uncertainty revolved around the so-called Race Question (also known as the “Race Problem,” the “Negro Question,” or the “Negro Problem”), that is, the issue of the nature of race and the proper arrangement of white-black relations. If the eventual solution to this question seems inevitable from our vantage point, it was anything but from the perspective of contemporaries and resulted from complex struggles between and among white and black southerners trying to find their bearings in the unfamiliar terrain of post-Reconstruction race relations. The implementation and institutionalization of the rigid, exclusionary, and oppressive system of Jim Crow were thus far from automatic or instantaneous. As the historian Jane Dailey (2000: 6) observes: “Although postwar southern society was eventually reranked according to racial hierarchy, the path from emancipation to Jim Crow was rockier than is sometimes realized. . . . The white supremacist South was not preordained, and its victory was never certain.”²

2 Introduction

As I shall explain and demonstrate in this book, the lynching of African Americans by white mobs did not simply reflect white domination but crucially forged the racial imaginations, experiences, relations, and institutions upon which the Jim Crow system rested. In other words, the co-occurrence of the lynching era with the ascendancy of Jim Crow was no mere coincidence; these developments were fundamentally and symbiotically linked in practices and processes feeding off of as well as into one another. Thus, as the title of this book implies, referring to “making race” by “doing violence,” I shall argue and show that lynchings did not signify an existing racial order as much as they gave rise to one. Doing Violence, Making Race thereby not only provides new insights into old problems but offers novel theoretical explanations, conceptual frameworks, and empirical findings surpassing those of previous studies in understanding the causes and consequences of southern lynching in the decades around 1900. This book, though, does not intend to either dismiss or diminish the contributions of previous lynching research—quite the contrary, because knowledge accumulation in the field of lynching research depends, due to the complexity of its subject matter, on juxtaposing different theoretical and methodological approaches and treating them as complementary rather than conflicting perspectives on a multifaceted social reality. Therefore, before launching in more detail into the scholarly approach and contribution of Doing Violence, Making Race, a discussion of the contributions and limitations of the existent lynching scholarship is suitable.

The Contributions and Limitations of Contemporary Lynching Scholarship

The contemporary lynching literature is divided between what, on the one hand, can be called studies in a social scientific tradition and, on the other hand, studies in a culturalist humanistic tradition. The former type of lynching scholarship has three characteristics. One, it is comparative in seeking to account for aggregate lynching rates and trends across spatial and temporal scales. Two, it applies theoretical approaches focusing on intergroup political and economic competition in explaining spatial and temporal lynching patterns. Three, it uses statistical methods and lynching inventories containing hundreds or even thousands of events. The groundbreaking A Festival of Violence by the sociologists Stewart Tolnay and E. M. Beck (1995) is the most important study in the social scientific tradition of lynching research.³ While not demonstrating a consistent link between lynching and various aspects of competitive southern electoral politics—for example, the strength of the Republican and Populist parties or the disfranchisement of African Americans in the late 1800s and early 1900s—Tolnay and Beck demonstrate that lynchings were more widespread the more whites’ economic interests clashed with those of blacks, particularly within the South’s cotton-dominated agricultural economy. Economic conditions in the southern cotton economy strongly influenced lynching violence against blacks, Tolnay and Beck (1995) argue, because they promoted a common interest among different classes of whites in controlling and subduing African Americans. The economic power of white planters and landowners depended upon the easy supply of a large, cheap, and docile black rural labor force. Smallholding and landless whites, in turn, competed with rural blacks for farm tenancy and laborer opportunities. Thus, although the specifics of their motivations may have differed, economic conditions aligned the interests of different classes of whites in ways bringing them together in an interclass coalition against blacks that sometimes assumed the form of lynching. In short, then, Tolnay and Beck conceive the intergroup violence of lynching as an instrumental means of racial social control furthering white economic interests.

The scholarly contribution of A Festival of Violence can hardly be overstated. Based upon substantial empirical research informed by a coherent theoretical framework, Tolnay and Beck (1995) craft a powerful argument linking economic conditions, racial social control, and racial violence in the post-Reconstruction South. However valuable Tolnay and Beck's study, no single theoretical-conceptual framework can address all facets of the lynching phenomenon, and due to its focus on economic conditions, there are limits to how much we can learn from it. The limitations of A Festival of Violence break down into a number of analytically separable elements. First, assuming relatively well-defined and well-bounded groups with enduring categorical and conflicting interests as the rationale for action, A Festival of Violence may, crudely put, be criticized for committing what Brubaker (Brubaker 2004: 8; cf. Blee 2005) calls the "groupism" fallacy. This involves treating "race" (and other categories) as an unproblematic theoretical, conceptual, and empirical unit of scholarly analysis, which inadvertently naturalizes and reifies racial (and other) groups and downplays their contingent, contested, and constructed nature. To be fair, it should, for one thing, be noted that Tolnay and Beck (1995) do recognize that the lynchings of African Americans were implicated in certain group-forming processes among whites, but this line of argument is not developed theoretically, conceptually, or empirically as fully as their treatment of economic conditions in understanding the causes and consequences of lynchings. For another thing, Tolnay and Beck are far from the only ones to treat structural economic cleavages as self-explanatory potential sources of interracial conflict and violence; the bulk of the social scientific lynching literature using statistical data and methods also does so.

Thus, rather than integrating matters related to the formation of groups into its key theoretical, conceptual, and empirical concerns, the social scientific lynching literature takes, due to its focus on lynching as an instrumental means promoting whites' economic interests, the existence, nature, and relevance of racial groups for granted as an exogenous and unproblematic analytical a priori. This renders non-material conditions and factors, such as the ways whereby race was defined, signified, represented, and enacted, residual in understanding the lynching phenomenon; noted but not considered essential to the phenomenon itself or to understanding its causes and consequences. Such matters of definition, signification, representation, and enactment invoke larger notions of culture, involving the complexes of meaning people use to navigate the social world, interpret the social world, and act in and on the social world. In short, then, the way in which the lynching of African Americans can be seen as a social practice enacting culturally encoded racial groups has not been taken up for extended comparative analyses in the social scientific literature. Given that the turn-of-the-twentieth-century South was intensely preoccupied with the above-mentioned "Race Question," this arguably neglects something important about the phenomenon that we are attempting to describe and explain.

4 Introduction

One aspect of the phenomenon that the social scientific lynching literature neglects is its heterogeneity. While lynching in the scholarly, as well as in the popular, imagination is perhaps most strongly associated with large public events coupled with extreme violence, not all lynchings featured broad-based participation, support, or overt brutality. Contrast, for instance, the following two examples (the descriptions of the Hose and Welly killings are based upon accounts in The Atlanta Constitution, April 24, 1899, page 1f and September 4, 1900, page 3, respectively):

On April 23, 1899, in front of about two thousand people in Coweta County, Georgia, Sam [Hose], a black man alleged to have killed his white employer and raped the employer's wife, was stripped of his clothes and chained to a tree with kerosene-soaked wood stacked high around him. Before Hose was burned at the stake, his ears, fingers, and genitals were cut off, and his face skinned. On the trunk of a nearby tree someone hung a sign reading: "We Must Protect Our Southern Women."

On the night of September 3, 1900, in Thomas County, Georgia, a black man named Grant Welly got into a dispute with a white man who cut Welly badly in the neck. A friend of Welly's, Joe Fleming, took him to a physician and then brought him to his house and put him to bed. Later that same night a group of five or six white men came to and fired into Fleming's house, killing Welly and wounding Fleming. Fleming tried to hide under the house, but was pulled out and told by the white men that if he left the house or told anyone about what had happened, they would kill him.

Drawing upon theories of competitive intergroup conflict to explain variation in the frequency, rather than the form, of lynchings, past social scientific research would treat the lynchings of Sam Hose and Grant Welly, respectively, as instances of a unitary phenomenon. Bringing out the whole range within which lynching violence varied, these two examples demonstrate where received theoretical-conceptual frameworks run up against their limits and must be complemented by other perspectives. Because the apparent violent excesses in the Hose lynching, far beyond necessary for causing the victim's death, suggest that lynchings may in some instances have revolved around concerns other than an instrumental move toward economic ends. "To kill an economic competitor or make an example of a recalcitrant worker was one thing; to mutilate him . . . appears," as Holt (1995: 5) observes, "to be something else altogether." As I shall show in the following chapters, differentiating between different lynching types and linking them to certain racial group-formation practices and processes connected to the rise of Jim Crow allow us to systematically account for this “something else,” as well as to explain the variation between lynching events displayed in the two examples described above.

Social scientific lynching research discussed so far can be contrasted with a culturalist humanistic strand of lynching research. Reflecting the cultural and linguistic turn in the humanities in recent decades, research in this vein approaches lynching as a culturally meaningful, symbolically and discursively mediated, and ritually regulated phenomenon. Research approaching lynching in such fashion includes the early studies Exorcising Blackness: Historical and Literary Lynchings and Burning Rituals, by Trudier Harris (1984), and The Crucible of Race: Black-White Relations in the American South since Emancipation, by Joel Williamson (1984) and the more recent ones: Southern Horrors: Women and the Politics of Rape and Lynching, by Crystal N. Feimster (2009), and Lynching and Spectacle: Witnessing Racial Violence in America, 1890–1940, by Amy Louise Wood (2009). These and other studies in the culturalist humanist tradition of lynching research shed light on the shifting cultural discourses, rhetorics, tropes, and images of race and racial violence in the late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century South.⁴ However, although credibly addressing some of the matters mentioned above that are largely absent from social scientific lynching research, such cultural contextualizations of violence do not, no matter how detailed or vivid, in and of themselves explain it (cf. Brubaker and Laitin 1998). In consequence, culturalist lynching studies have certain important limitations.

The first limitation is theoretical and conceptual: more concerned with uncovering the meaning of the cultural discourses, rhetorics, tropes, and images of race and racial violence than with the actual practices of violence enacted within and through social actions, interactions, and relations in particular situations, times, and places, culturalist lynching studies struggle to convincingly specify the link between word and deed. As Jones (2000: 538) notes, “It is one thing, discursively, to order things: it is another . . . to establish praxis (thoughts put into action)” in the material world. In other words, focusing heavily on the discourses, rhetorics, tropes, and images of race and racial violence in the post-Reconstruction period, culturalist analyses of lynching do not pay sufficient attention to the social circumstances within and through which individual and collective white actors were motivated and enabled to effectively generate and communicate racial meanings through lynchings.

Culturalist studies of lynching are thus from social scientific explanatory standpoint too simplistic to provide analytical purchase on questions about how cultural discourses, rhetorics, tropes, and images of race took hold and played themselves out among whites in the practice of lynching. One way to clarify this limitation is to point out that culturalist analyses overpredict lynchings. Or to put the issue in social scientific terms, the purported independent variable, that is, the cultural discourses, rhetorics, tropes, and images of race, was much more widespread than the dependent variable, that is, the racial violence of lynching. In consequence, culturalist studies of lynching give analytical weight to “agentless abstractions”

6 Introduction

(Cooper 2005), that is, concepts that seemingly provide a neat cultural logic to the phenomenon but do not clearly or convincingly demonstrate the impact of racial discourses, rhetorics, tropes, and images on the formation of racialized actors, actions, interactions, and relations in particular situations, times, or places.

The second limitation of culturalist lynching studies is methodological. They are for the most part based upon case studies of a single or handful of specific lynchings, including their textual and visual representations. While this type of highly contextualized in-depth analysis has garnered detailed evidence on the circumstances surrounding specific lynching events, they cannot, from the standpoint of the social scientific lynching literature, be said to proffer generalizable findings. This is because the essence of the social scientific method for producing generalizations is to identify and compare patterns among a multitude of cases and not merely investigate singular cases. Furthermore, while the social scientific lynching literature collapses all forms of lethal mob violence into the single undifferentiated conceptual heading of “lynching,” culturalist studies exhibit more often than not a one-sided focus on particularly high-profile events such as the lynching of Sam Hose described above. In Without Sanctuary, the book accompanying the lynching photography exhibition that visited cities throughout the United States in the early 2000s, the historian Leon Litwack (2000: 14) illustrates this lopsidedness well. Says Litwack: “The story of a lynching . . . is the story of slow, methodical, sadistic, often highly inventive forms of torture and mutilation.” But as the lynching of Grant Welly described above demonstrates, lynchings involving communal and gratuitous violence are only part of the story of lynching. An analysis that makes no sustained reference to the kind of lynchings illustrated by the Welly lynching therefore paints an incomplete picture of the nature and significance of racial mob violence in the post-Reconstruction South.

Here I should immediately point out two historical studies upon which this book in no small measure draws, which are based on exhaustive inventories of lynchings in different U.S. states and earnestly consider the kinds of differences among lynching events manifested in the lynchings of Sam Hose and Grant Welly: W. Fitzhugh Brundage’s (1993) Lynching in the New South: Georgia and Virginia, 1880–1930 and Michael J. Pfeifer’s (2004) Rough Justice: Lynching and American Society, 1874–1947 (see also Carrigan 2004; Wright 1990). These two important studies represent a third strand of sorts in the contemporary lynching literature alongside the social scientific studies and the culturalist humanistic studies surveyed to this point. As empirically rich as these works are, they are, however, unaccompanied by rigorous methods of analysis and adduce information on different kinds of lynching events descriptively to illustrate their arguments rather than submitting it to theoretically informed and methodologically systematic analysis. Their arguments therefore remain more conjectural than conclusive.

In sum, while the theoretically, conceptually, and methodologically robust strand of social scientific lynching research pays no sustained attention to the cultural aspects of lynching or to the variation among lynching events, the culturalist humanistic strand of lynching research that does address such matters rests upon weak theoretical, conceptual, and methodological foundations. These disjunctures in contemporary lynching scholarship suggest areas in need of further theoretical, conceptual, and empirical elaboration. In an attempt at interdisciplinary dialogue in an otherwise fragmented research field, Doing Violence, Making Race accordingly broadens the scope of social scientific lynching research by staking out new theoretical, conceptual, and methodological tracks moving it beyond its hitherto focus on competitive intergroup relations, in particular interracial economic competition, in explaining and analyzing lynchings into what could be called the “cultural territories” (Lamont 1999) of race and racial violence.

The Argument of Doing Violence, Making Race

In order to bring the study of lynching into the cultural territories of race and racial violence, I draw on a growing body of research focusing on the centrality of boundary-making practices and processes in social life (for reviews, see Lamont and Molnar [2002] and Pachucki, Pendergrass, and Lamont [2007]). The boundary-focused perspective suggests directions for crafting analyses of the mutual influences and consequences of culture in social life, while at the same time remaining committed to the social scientific enterprise of theoretically, conceptually, and empirically systematic and rigorous comparisons and generalizations. One way it does so is by emphasizing formative practices and processes of group-making. “The notion of boundaries is,” as Lamont and Molnar (2002: 187) point out, “crucial for analyzing how social actors construct groups as similar and different and how it shapes their understanding of their responsibilities toward such groups.” In emphasizing group-making practices and processes as a central cultural arena, the boundary-perspective veers away from naturalizing and reifying groups and, thereby, avoids the pitfall of groupism discussed earlier.

Culturally informed sociological analyses need to be actor oriented because it is only through the practices of concrete actors, whether individual, collective (for example, localized communities), or corporate (for example, formal organizations), that the influence of culturally mediated meaning-making in social life becomes realized and consequential (Alexander 2003). By virtue of its pragmatist attention to social actors and their social practices manifested in actions, interactions, relations, and institutions, the boundary-focused perspective allows in that regard for theoretically, conceptually, and methodologically systematic and rigorous analyses of culture in and of social life. In its attention to social actors and social practices, the boundary perspective thus avoids resorting to agentless abstractions in explaining and exploring social phenomena.

From this perspective, then, culture cannot be understood apart from social life, but it is not seen as deterministically influencing passively affected actors but as simultaneously enabling and constraining actors actively engaged and embedded in meaning-making social practices and processes (Alexander 2003). What this implies is that the cultural significance and implication of social phenomena cannot be explained in isolation from broader social situations, contexts, and structures. As Lamont (1992: 135) points out, in order to explore the link between culture and social life, we need to consider “how remote and proximate [social] structural factors shape choices from and access to the [cultural] tool kit—in other words, how these factors affect the cultural resources most likely to be mobilized by different types of individuals and what elements of tool kits people have most access to given their social positions.” What this does not imply is that people dwell under social or cultural conditions of their own choosing or making, or that they construe their actional, interactional, relational, and institutional social practices freely with full or uniform comprehension of their reasons and consequences. But it does suggest, for one thing, that people pursue social practices with purpose and with some notion of what they are doing and why they are doing it, and, for another, that it is possible for us to comprehend what they are doing and the purposes in and consequences of their doing so (cf. Weber 1978).

8 Introduction

In the present case, to impart the type of comparative and generalizable explanations and analyses characterizing the social scientific tradition of lynching research with a theoretically, conceptually, and methodologically robust recognition of the cultural dimensions of lynching involves taking the perspective and behavior of lynch mobs such as the ones killing Sam Hose and Grant Welly, respectively, into account and ask what their participants thought they were doing, how that influenced the character of their deeds, and to what effect. This can be achieved to the extent that we cast the explanations and analyses in terms of the intersubjective experiences, understandings, and purposes that we can reasonably assume that lynchers and their communities themselves subjected their circumstances and practices to. At its heart, then, this book is concerned with explicating the cultural and social conditions and processes that impinged upon southern whites’ experiences, understandings, and purposes in ways making different forms of lynchings more or less meaningful and, as such, more or less likely and consequential in some but not other contexts in the post-Reconstruction South.

The argument of this book can be stated in brief point form as follows. First, drawing on research focusing on the role of boundaries in the practices and processes of group-making, I conceptualize culture in terms of symbolic group boundaries and categories embedded in group narratives. Narratives are stories through which group members come to understand “what it means” to be who they as well as others are. As narratives are grounded in symbolic boundaries representing the meanings of relevant group categories, they can be considered group ideologies embodying people’s expectations of and commitments to particular groups. In consequence, narrative-embedded symbolic boundaries promote group-making practices and processes to the extent that they, for one thing, evoke collective identities, that is, notions and feelings of shared commonality and purpose, as well as affine and solidary actions, interactions, and relations among those perceived as similar to one another. To the extent that they, for another thing, evoke social identities, that is, individuals’ sense of belonging to as well as inclusion in particular groups. And to the extent that they, for a third thing, produce social boundaries that systematically influence patterns of actions, interactions, and relations, including the distribution of resources, among and between groups based on purported categorical differences.

Second, intergroup violence can be considered the practical enactment of symbolic group boundaries and categories, making it meaningful to perpetrators as well as to spectators. As such, intergroup violence plays into group-making dynamics by socially realizing the ideals and visions of narratives by activating and constituting categorical social and collective identities, as well as instantiating categorical social boundaries. The character of intergroup violence varies, though, depending on what level of analysis—individual or collective—it unfolds, with the latter exhibiting higher levels of communality, publicity, and brutality than the former. In this view, then, the crystallization, polarization, and stratification of groups across levels of analysis is not seen only as the cause but also the outcome of intergroup violence.

Third, the southern Confederacy's defeat in the Civil War, the abolition of slavery, and other measures taken during the Reconstruction period to improve the economic, political, and social position of African Americans relative to whites destroyed the institutionalized antebellum system of symbolic and social race boundaries, categories, and identities. Whereas an institutionalized system of racial oppression eventually reemerged in the South in the late 1800s and early 1900s in the form of Jim Crow, the intervening decades were a period of continual tension, struggle, and uncertainty regarding the nature and proper arrangement of the relationship between southern whites and blacks. An exponent of this struggle, uncertainty, and tension was the articulation and dissemination of new racial symbolic boundaries infusing new meanings into the racial categories "white" and "black." These symbolic racial boundaries and categories were embedded within a new white racial group narrative, a radical (or extremist or militant) ideology of white supremacy, replacing lingering antebellum notions of paternalistic white-black relations with views that not only set African Americans categorically apart from and beneath whites, but also portrayed them as imminently endangering whites and their communities. The radical white supremacist narrative, along with its associated symbolic racial boundaries and categories, fundamentally fueled and justified the multitude of actions, interactions, relations, and institutions leading up to and representing the implementation and stabilization of the Jim Crow system.

Fourth, the different forms of lynchings were culturally rooted social practices through which racial group-making processes stemming from the radical white supremacist narrative of race and race relations—involving the articulation and formation of symbolic racial categories and boundaries, social racial boundaries, and white social and collective identities, fundamental to the implementation and stabilization of Jim Crow—flowed during "the most violent and repressive period in the history of race relations in the United States" (Litwack 1998: xiv).

Methodological Notes

A convincing analysis regarding the link between culture and different types of lynching must, methodologically speaking, proceed through three steps. First, it must provide a working familiarity with the cultural elements and resources that post-Reconstruction southern whites drew on in enacting their violent deeds.

Second, it must furnish data including large enough numbers of lynchings of different types to allow comparative and generalizable analyses. Third, it must demonstrate under what situational and contextual conditions cultural elements and resources were more likely to impact the varied practices of lynching. While I defer discussing the third step until later chapters, I will here briefly address how this study goes about the first two steps.

Given present theoretical and conceptual concerns, the first step involves probing and revealing white racial group narratives, symbolic racial boundaries and categories, and racial social and collective identities as a lens into how whites conceived and understood themselves, African Americans, and the wider southern society around them. This is because those conceptions and understandings powered, in turn, the practical interracial actions, interactions, relations, and institutions upon which the system of Jim Crow rested, including lynching in all its different forms. To that end, I pursue what could be called historical-sociological ethnography, involving taking contemporary worldviews and voices into account, using an equivalent of Geertzian “thick description” (Geertz 1973) to capture and assess the contents and meanings of various cultural elements and resources available to southern whites in this period. I do so by drawing heavily on and citing extensively from primary sources, including newspapers, books, pamphlets, letters, and speeches and other public statements, as well as the rich secondary historical literature. While this may tread much familiar southern historiographical ground and not divulge much novel information as such, we have without such a close analytical reconstruction of the racial narratives, categories, boundaries, and identities dominant in the post-Reconstruction period scant hope of uncovering the conceptions, experiences, and understandings that led southern whites to engage in the violent practices of lynching and the consequences thereof.

Given the heterogeneity of lynching events evident in the lynchings of Sam Hose and Grant Welly, respectively, statistical data including comparable information of a large number of lynching events in terms of alleged reasons and actual perpetrator behavior are essential to this study. In order to create such data I augmented the Georgia and Louisiana parts of the ten-state Tolnay and Beck (1995) lynching event inventory for the period 1882–1930 (the construction of the inventory of lynching events used in the statistical analyses of this study is described in further detail in the Methodological Appendix). This book’s ambition to move beyond a unidimensional lynching concept guided in combination with data availability this choice of states. The online, full-text ProQuest Historical Newspapers™ database offers easy access to contemporary newspaper reports on lynchings in the Atlanta Constitution—the most important and widely read newspaper in Georgia at the time. On the basis of the information in newspaper reports, the lynching data used in this book expand the Georgia data in the Beck-Tolnay inventory in a number of ways. They include an additional 39 white-on-black and 6 white-on-white lynching events confirmed or discovered subsequent to the construction of the original Beck-Tolnay inventory, they exclude a few events in the Beck-Tolnay inventory which in light of newly discovered information should not be considered lynchings, and they classify each event according to a twofold lynching typology depending on the event's degree of communal-ity, publicity, and brutality. As for availability of data on lynchings in Louisiana, Pfeifer's Rough Justice: Lynching and American Society 1874–1947 (2004) not only contains a comprehensive list of lynching events in that state but also classifies them according to the same typology upon which the classification of lynchings in Georgia at root rests. As a result, this study uses a data set of more than 600 lynchings in Georgia and Louisiana containing more complete and more detailed information than previously available.

While no one state can be seen as representative of the South as a whole, the geographical scope of the study is also justified on substantive grounds. Georgia is “an obvious choice for a study of lynching: the character and harshness of white domination . . . became the measure of race relations in the Deep South. . . . The sheer scale of mob violence in Georgia alone commands attention” (Brundage 1993: 15f). Moreover, as Du Bois pointed out in the early 1900s: “Not only is Georgia . . . the geographical focus of our Negro population, but in many other respects, both now and yesterday, the Negro problems [i.e., the “Race Question”] have seemed to be centered in this State” (Du Bois 2003: 112). What is more, Georgia and Louisiana spanned all the major subregions of the South at the time in terms of demographic, economic, historical, and physiographic characteristics, which is methodologically important because a study that does not include them all is liable to misleading results and conclusions.

Outline of the Book

The remainder of the book consists of seven chapters (and one Methodological Appendix). The next three chapters lay out the theoretical-conceptual foundations and the historical background guiding the statistical analyses in subsequent chapters. Chapter 2 develops a theoretical and conceptual framework elaborating important cultural aspects of intergroup violence. It highlights, for one thing, the performative and formative qualities of intergroup violence in not only reflecting but also forging social boundaries, as well as social and collective identities, envisioned by group narratives and symbolic boundaries. For another, it clarifies how the character of intergroup violence varies depending on whether it is enacted primarily to uphold social boundaries and identities on the interpersonal or the collective level of analysis. Chapter 3 reviews the economic, political, and social developments taking place from the antebellum period, via the Reconstruction period, to the post-Reconstruction period, paying particular attention to the transformation of dominant racial group narratives, boundaries, categories, and identities, necessary for understanding lynching as a racial group-making practice within the rise of the Jim Crow South. Chapter 4 documents how different forms of lynching can be conceptualized in terms of the ideal-types of interpersonal and collective intergroup violence introduced in Chapter 2. More to the point, in this chapter I develop the distinction between what I call “private” lynchings, which, perpetrated by smaller groups without excessive brutality and outside public purview, are exemplified by the Welly lynching, and “public” lynchings, which displayed the type of communality, publicity, and brutality illustrated by the Hose lynching.

The following three chapters look into how the practice of lynching in its various forms channeled the white racial group-making processes under way in the South during the decades around 1900 underwriting the emerging system of Jim Crow. Focusing on the role of intergroup violence in drawing social boundaries on the collective level, Chapter 5 reveals how as dominant white conceptions of race and race relations took an extremist turn, lynchings linked to interracial sexuality increasingly assumed the form of public lynchings, serving to transform symbolic boundaries and representations of African Americans as a menace to whites and their communities into a social boundary of black stigma and exclusion. Chapter 6 demonstrates how public but not private lynchings were dispositive of as well as conducive to the collective racial identifications, affinities, and solidarities of extremist white supremacy among southern whites in the decades around 1900. Conversely, Chapter 7, focusing on the role of intergroup violence as a means to claim the group belonging implied by a social identity, shows how private but not public lynchings emanated in whites' social racial identity concerns within interracial status relations on the interpersonal rather than the collective level.

The concluding Chapter 8 summarizes the study's main results and discusses how they complement previous research in understanding the impact of lynching in instituting the Jim Crow system and beyond. In doing so, I follow the lead of E. M. Beck and Stewart Tolnay, upon whose shoulders this study very much stands: "For rather than being the 'final word' on the causes of southern lynching and its decline, our book [A Festival of Violence] might prove to be the stimulus for further research that results eventually in an even more complete story of this shameful chapter in our nation's history—a story that is based on empirical evidence rather than conjecture, ideology, or rhetoric" (Beck and Tolnay 1998: 179f). While I hope that this study serves such a purpose, I must leave it to readers to judge.

Notes

1. This study adopts the conventional definition of a lynching as the extralegal killing of one or several persons by at least three people acting under the pretext of justice or tradition. Based on this definition, Tolnay and Beck (1995) estimate that during the "lynching era" between 1882 and 1930 about 2500 blacks were lynched in the ten southern states included in their investigation (Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee).
2. Other studies approaching the cultural meanings and social consequences of race and racial hierarchy in the post-slavery South as far from obvious include Ayers (1992), Dailey, Gilmore, and Simon (2000), Hodes (1997), Kantrowitz (2000), Mitchell (2004), Prince (2014), and Rosen (2009).
3. For other studies in this tradition of lynching research, see Beck, Massey, and Tolnay (1989), Beck and Tolnay (1990), Corzine, Creech, and Corzine (1983), Corzine, Huff-Corzine, and Creech (1988), Gullickson (2010), Olzak (1992), Reed (1972), Soule (1992), and Tolnay, Deane, and Beck (1996).
4. The culturalist humanist tradition of lynching research also includes studies by Apel (2004), Goldsby (2006), Gunning (1996), and Hale (1998).

References

- Alexander, Jeffrey C. 2003. The Meanings of Social Life: A Cultural Sociology. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Apel, Dora. 2004. Imagery of Lynching: Black Men, White Women, and the Mob. New Brunswick: Rutgers University Press.
- Ayers, Edward L. 1992. The Promise of the New South: Life after Reconstruction. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Beck, E. M., James Massey, and Stewart E. Tolnay. 1989. "The Gallows, the Mob, and the Vote: Lethal Sanctioning of Blacks in North Carolina and Georgia, 1882–1930." Law & Society Review 23:317–31.
- Beck, E. M. and Stewart E. Tolnay. 1990. "The Killing Fields of the Deep South: The Market for Cotton and the Lynching of Blacks, 1882–1930." American Sociological Review 55:526–39.
- Beck, E. M. and Stewart E. Tolnay. 1998. "Revisiting A Festival of Violence." Historical Methods 31:178–80.
- Blee, Kathleen M. 2005. "Racial Violence in the United States." Ethnic and Racial Studies 28:599–619.
- Brubaker, Rogers. 2004. Ethnicity without Groups. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- Brubaker, Rogers, and David D. Laitin. 1998. "Ethnic and Nationalist Violence." Annual Review of Sociology 24:423–52.
- Brundage, W. Fitzhugh. 1993. Lynching in the New South: Georgia and Virginia, 1880–1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Carrigan, William D. 2004. The Making of a Lynching Culture: Violence and Vigilantism in Central Texas, 1836–1916. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Cooper, Frederick. 2005. Colonialism in Question: Theory, Knowledge, History. Berkeley: University of California Press.
- Corzine, Jay, James Creech, and Lin Corzine. 1983. "Black Concentration and Lynchings in the South: Testing Blalock's Power-Threat Hypothesis." Social Forces 61:774–96.
- Corzine, Jay, Lin Huff-Corzine, and James Creech. 1988. "The Tenant Labor Market and Lynching in the South: A Test of Split Labor Market Theory." Sociological Inquiry 58:261–78.
- Dailey, Jane. 2000. Before Jim Crow: The Politics of Race in Postemancipation Virginia. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina.
- Dailey, Jane, Glenda Elizabeth Gilmore, and Bryant Simon. 2000. Jumpin' Jim Crow: Southern Politics from Civil War to Civil Rights. Princeton: Princeton University Press.
- Du Bois, W. E. Burghardt. 2003. The Souls of Black Folk. New York: Modern Library.
- Feimster, Crystal Nicole. 2009. Southern Horrors: Women and the Politics of Rape and Lynching. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- Geertz, Clifford. 1973. Interpretation of Cultures: Selected Essays. New York: Basic Books.
- Goldsby, Jacqueline. 2006. A Spectacular Secret: Lynching in American Life and Literature. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Gullickson, Aaron. 2010. "Racial Boundary Formation at the Dawn of Jim Crow: The Determinants and Effects of Black/Mulatto Occupational Differences in the United States, 1880." American Journal of Sociology 116:187–231.
- Gunning, Sandra. 1996. Race, Rape, and Lynching: The Red Record of American Literature, 1890–1912. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Hale, Grace Elizabeth. 1998. Making Whiteness: The Culture of Segregation in the South, 1890–1940. New York: Vintage.
- Harris, Trudier. 1984. Exorcising Blackness: Historical and Literary Lynching and Burning Rituals. Bloomington: Indiana University Press.

14 Introduction

- Hodes, Martha. 1997. White Women, Black Men: Illicit Sex in the Nineteenth-Century South. New Haven: Yale University Press.
- Holt, Thomas C. 1995. "Marking: Race, Race-Making, and the Writing of History." The American Historical Review 100:1–20.
- Jones, Adrian. 2000. "Word and Deed: Why a Post-Poststructural History Is Needed, and How It Might Look." The Historical Journal 43:517–41.
- Kantrowitz, Stephen. 2000. Ben Tillman and the Reconstruction of White Supremacy. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Lamont, Michèle. 1992. Money, Morals, and Manners: The Culture of the French and the American Upper-middle Class. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Lamont, Michèle, editor. 1999. The Cultural Territories of Race: Black and White Boundaries. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Lamont, Michèle and Virag Molnar. 2002. "The Study of Boundaries in the Social Sciences." Annual Review of Sociology 28:167–95.
- Litwack, Leon F. 1998. Trouble in Mind: Black Southerners in the Age of Jim Crow. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.
- Litwack, Leon F. 2000. "Hellhounds." In Without Sanctuary: Lynching Photography in America, edited by James Allen, 8–37. Santa Fe: Twin Palms Publishers.
- Mitchell, Michele. 2004. Righteous Propagation: African Americans and the Politics of Racial Destiny after Reconstruction. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Olzak, Susan. 1992. The Dynamics of Ethnic Competition and Conflict. Stanford: Stanford University Press.
- Pachucki, Mark, Sabrina Pendergrass, and Michèle Lamont. 2007. "Boundary Processes: Recent Theoretical Developments and New Contributions." Poetics 35:331–51.
- Pfeifer, J. Michael. 2004. Rough Justice: Lynching and American Society, 1874–1947. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Prince, K. Stephen. 2014. Stories of the South: Race and the Reconstruction of Southern Identity, 1865–1915. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Reed, John S. 1972. "Percent Black and Lynching: A Test of Blalock's Theory." Social Forces 50:356–60.
- Rosen, Hannah. 2009. Terror in the Heart of Freedom: Citizenship, Sexual Violence, and the Meaning of Race in the Postemancipation South. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Soule, Sarah A. 1992. "Populism and Black Lynching in Georgia, 1890–1900." Social Forces 71:431–49.
- Tolnay, Stewart E. and E. M. Beck. 1995. A Festival of Violence: An Analysis of Southern Lynchings, 1882–1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Tolnay, Stewart E., Glenn Deane, and E. M. Beck. 1996. "Vicarious Violence: Spatial Effects on Southern Lynchings, 1890–1919." American Journal of Sociology 102:788–815.
- Weber, Max. 1978. Economy and Society: An Outline of Interpretive Sociology. Berkeley: University of California Press.
- Williamson, Joel. 1984. The Crucible of Race: Black-White Relations in the American South since Emancipation. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Wood, Amy Louise. 2009. Lynching and Spectacle: Witnessing Racial Violence in America, 1890–1940. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Wright, George C. 1990. Racial Violence in Kentucky, 1865–1940: Lynchings, Mob Rule, and "Legal Lynchings". Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.

Introduction

- Alexander, Jeffrey C. 2003. The Meanings of Social Life: A Cultural Sociology. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Apel, Dora. 2004. Imagery of Lynching: Black Men, White Women, and the Mob. New Brunswick: Rutgers University Press.
- Ayers, Edward L. 1992. The Promise of the New South: Life after Reconstruction. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Beck, E. M. , James Massey , and Stewart E. Tolnay . 1989. The Gallows, the Mob, and the Vote: Lethal Sanctioning of Blacks in North Carolina and Georgia, 1882-1930. Law & Society Review 23:317-331.
- Beck, E. M. and Stewart E. Tolnay . 1990. The Killing Fields of the Deep South: The Market for Cotton and the Lynching of Blacks, 1882-1930. American Sociological Review 55:526-539.
- Beck, E. M. and Stewart E. Tolnay . 1998. Revisiting A Festival of Violence . Historical Methods 31:178-180.
- Blee, Kathleen M. 2005. Racial Violence in the United States. Ethnic and Racial Studies 28:599-619.
- Brubaker, Rogers. 2004. Ethnicity without Groups. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- Brubaker, Rogers , and David D. Laitin . 1998. Ethnic and Nationalist Violence. Annual Review of Sociology 24:423-452.
- Brundage, W. Fitzhugh. 1993. Lynching in the New South: Georgia and Virginia, 1880-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Carrigan, William D. 2004. The Making of a Lynching Culture: Violence and Vigilantism in Central Texas, 1836-1916. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Cooper, Frederick. 2005. Colonialism in Question: Theory, Knowledge, History. Berkeley: University of California Press.
- Corzine, Jay , James Creech , and Lin Corzine . 1983. Black Concentration and Lynchings in the South: Testing Blalocks Power-Threat Hypothesis. Social Forces 61:774-796.
- Corzine, Jay , Lin Huff-Corzine , and James Creech . 1988. The Tenant Labor Market and Lynching in the South: A Test of Split Labor Market Theory. Sociological Inquiry 58:261-278.
- Dailey, Jane. 2000. Before Jim Crow: The Politics of Race in Postemancipation Virginia. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina.
- Dailey, Jane , Glenda Elizabeth Gilmore , and Bryant Simon . 2000. Jumpin Jim Crow: Southern Politics from Civil War to Civil Rights. Princeton: Princeton University Press.
- Du Bois , W. E. Burghardt . 2003. The Souls of Black Folk. New York: Modern Library.
- Feimster, Crystal Nicole . 2009. Southern Horrors: Women and the Politics of Rape and Lynching. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- Geertz, Clifford. 1973. Interpretation of Cultures: Selected Essays. New York: Basic Books.
- Goldsby, Jacqueline. 2006. A Spectacular Secret: Lynching in American Life and Literature. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Gullickson, Aaron. 2010. Racial Boundary Formation at the Dawn of Jim Crow: The Determinants and Effects of Black/Mulatto Occupational Differences in the United States, 1880. American Journal of Sociology 116:187-231.
- Gunning, Sandra. 1996. Race, Rape, and Lynching: The Red Record of American Literature, 1890-1912. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Hale, Grace Elizabeth. 1998. Making Whiteness: The Culture of Segregation in the South, 1890-1940. New York: Vintage.
- Harris, Trudier. 1984. Exorcising Blackness: Historical and Literary Lynching and Burning Rituals. Bloomington: Indiana University Press.
- 14 Hodes, Martha . 1997. White Women, Black Men: Illicit Sex in the Nineteenth-Century South. New Haven: Yale University Press.
- Holt, Thomas C. 1995. Marking: Race, Race-Making, and the Writing of History. The American Historical Review 100:120.
- Jones, Adrian. 2000. Word and Deed: Why a Post-Poststructural History Is Needed, and How It Might Look. The Historical Journal 43:517-541.
- Kantrowitz, Stephen. 2000. Ben Tillman and the Reconstruction of White Supremacy. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Lamont, Michle. 1992. Money, Morals, and Manners: The Culture of the French and the American Upper-middle Class. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Lamont, Michle , editor. 1999. The Cultural Territories of Race: Black and White Boundaries. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Lamont, Michle and Virag Molnar . 2002. The Study of Boundaries in the Social Sciences. Annual Review of Sociology 28:167-195.

- Litwack, Leon F. 1998. Trouble in Mind: Black Southerners in the Age of Jim Crow. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.
- Litwack, Leon F. 2000. Hellhounds. In Without Sanctuary: Lynching Photography in America, edited by James Allen , 837. Santa Fe: Twin Palms Publishers.
- Mitchell, Michele. 2004. Righteous Propagation: African Americans and the Politics of Racial Destiny after Reconstruction. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Olzak, Susan. 1992. The Dynamics of Ethnic Competition and Conflict. Stanford: Stanford University Press.
- Pachucki, Mark , Sabrina Pendergrass , and Michle Lamont . 2007. Boundary Processes: Recent Theoretical Developments and New Contributions. Poetics 35:331351.
- Pfeifer, J. Michael. 2004. Rough Justice: Lynching and American Society, 1874-1947. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Prince, K. Stephen. 2014. Stories of the South: Race and the Reconstruction of Southern Identity, 1865-1915. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Reed, John S. 1972. Percent Black and Lynching: A Test of Blalocks Theory. Social Forces 50:356360.
- Rosen, Hannah. 2009. Terror in the Heart of Freedom: Citizenship, Sexual Violence, and the Meaning of Race in the Postemancipation South. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Soule, Sarah A. 1992. Populism and Black Lynching in Georgia, 1890-1900. Social Forces 71:431449.
- Tolnay, Stewart E. and E. M. Beck . 1995. A Festival of Violence: An Analysis of Southern Lynchings, 1882-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Tolnay, Stewart E. , Glenn Deane , and E. M. Beck . 1996. Vicarious Violence: Spatial Effects on Southern Lynchings, 1890-1919. American Journal of Sociology 102:788815.
- Weber, Max. 1978. Economy and Society: An Outline of Interpretive Sociology. Berkley: University of California Press.
- Williamson, Joel. 1984. The Crucible of Race: Black-White Relations in the American South since Emancipation. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Wood, Amy Louise. 2009. Lynching and Spectacle: Witnessing Racial Violence in America, 1890-1940. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Wright, George C. 1990. Racial Violence in Kentucky, 1865-1940: Lynchings, Mob Rule , and Legal Lynchings. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.

A Theoretical-Conceptual Framework of Group Formation and Intergroup Violence

- Alba, Richard . 2005. Bright vs. Blurred Boundaries: Second-Generation Assimilation and Exclusion in France, Germany, and the United States. Ethnic and Racial Studies 28:2049.
- Alexander, Jeffrey C. 2003. The Meanings of Social Life: A Cultural Sociology. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Alexander, Jeffrey C. and Ronald N. Jacobs . 1998. Mass Communication, Ritual and Civil Society. In Media, Ritual and Identity, edited by James Curran and Tamar Liebes , 2341. New York: Routledge.
- Anderson, Benedict . 1991. Imagined Communities: Reflections on the Origins and Spread of Nationalism. London and New York: Verso.
- Bail, Christopher A. 2012. The Fringe Effect: Civil Society Organizations and the Evolution of Media Discourse about Islam since the September 11th Attacks. American Sociological Review 77:855879.
- Berger, Peter L. and Thomas Luckmann . 1966. The Social Construction of Reality: A Treatise in the Sociology of Knowledge. New York: Doubleday.
- Blalock, Hubert M. 1967. Toward a Theory of Minority Group Relations. New York: Wiley.
- Blee, Kathleen M. 2005. Racial Violence in the United States. Ethnic and Racial Studies 28:599619.
- Blok, Anton . 1998. The Narcissism of Minor Differences. European Journal of Social Theory 1:3356.
- Bolton, Charles C. 1993. Poor Whites of the Antebellum South: Tenants and Laborers in Central North Carolina and Northeast Mississippi. Durham and London: Duke University Press.
- Bourdieu, Pierre . 1977. Outline of a Theory of Practice. New York: Cambridge University Press.

Bourdieu, Pierre . 1987. What Makes a Social Class? On the Theoretical and Practical Existence of Groups. Berkeley Journal of Sociology 32:117.

Bourdieu, Pierre . 2013. Symbolic Capital and Social Classes. Journal of Classical Sociology 13:292302.

Brown, David . 2013. A Vagabonds Tale: Poor Whites, Herrenvolk Democracy, and the Value of Whiteness in the Late Antebellum South. The Journal of Southern History 79:799840.

Brubaker, Rogers . 2004. Ethnicity without Groups. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

Burke, Peter J. and Jan E. Stets . 2009. Identity Theory. New York: Oxford University Press.

Chwe, Michael Suk-Young . 2001. Rational Ritual: Culture, Coordination, and Common Knowledge. Princeton: Princeton University Press.

30 Collins, Randall . 1974. Three Faces of Cruelty: Towards a Comparative Sociology of Violence. Theory and Society 1:415440.

Collins, Randall . 2004. Interaction Ritual Chains. Princeton: Princeton University Press.

Collins, Randall . 2008. Violence: A Micro-Sociological Theory. Princeton: Princeton University Press.

Desmond, Matthew and Mustafa Emirbayer . 2009. What Is Racial Domination? Du Bois Review 6:335355.

Durkheim, Emile . 1964. The Division of Labor in Society. New York: The Free Press.

Durkheim, Emile . 1965. The Elementary Forms of the Religious Life. New York: The Free Press.

Felson, Richard B. 1982. Impression Management and the Escalation of Aggression and Violence. Social Psychology Quarterly 45:245254.

Fine, Gary Alan and Kent Sandstrom . 1993. Ideology in Action: A Pragmatic Approach to a Contested Concept. Sociological Theory 11:2138.

Fox, Cybelle and Thomas A. Guglielmo . 2012. Defining Americas Racial Boundaries: Blacks, Mexicans, and European Immigrants, 1890-1945. American Journal of Sociology 118:327379.

Fredrickson, George M. 1971. The Black Image in the White Mind: The Debate on Afro-American Character and Destiny, 1817-1914. New York: Harper and Row.

Garfinkel, Harold . 1956. Conditions of Successful Degradation Ceremonies. American Journal of Sociology 61:420424.

Geertz, Clifford . 1973. Interpretation of Cultures: Selected Essays. New York: Basic Books.

Goffman, Erving . 1959. The Presentation of Self in Everyday Life. New York: Doubleday.

Goffman, Erving . 1967. Interaction Ritual: Essays on Face-to-Face Behavior. New York: Pantheon.

Goffman, Erving . 1974. Frame Analysis: An Essay on the Organization of Experience. New York: Harper & Row.

Gould, Roger V. 1995. Insurgent Identities: Class, Community and Protest in Paris from 1848 to the Commune. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Gould, Roger V. 2003. Collision of Wills: How Ambiguity about Social Rank Breeds Conflict. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Hogg, Michael A. , Deborah J. Terry , and Katherine M. White . 1995. A Tale of Two Theories: A Critical Comparison of Identity Theory with Social Identity Theory. Social Psychology Quarterly 58:255269.

Jenkins, Richard . 2014. Time to Move beyond Boundary Making? Ethnic and Racial Studies 37:809813.

Kane, Anne . 2000. Reconstructing Culture in Historical Explanation: Narratives as Cultural Structure and Practice. History and Theory 39:311330.

Kurasawa, Fuyuki . 2004. Alexander and the Cultural Refounding of American Sociology. Thesis Eleven 79:5364.

Lamont, Michle. 1992. Money, Morals, and Manners: The Culture of the French and the American Upper-middle Class. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Lamont, Michle , Stefan Beljean , and Matthew Clair . 2014. What Is Missing? Cultural Processes and Causal Pathways to Inequality. Socio-Economic Review 12:573608.

Lamont, Michle and Virag Molnar . 2002. The Study of Boundaries in the Social Sciences. Annual Review of Sociology 28:167195.

Levine, Bruce C. 2013. The Fall of the House of Dixie: The Civil War and the Social Revolution that Transformed the South. New York: Random House.

31 Loveman, Mara . 1999a. Making Race and Nation in the United States, South Africa, and Brazil: Taking Making Seriously. Theory and Society 28:903927.

Loveman, Mara . 1999b. Is Race Essential? American Sociological Review 64:891898.

Luckenbill, David F. 1977. Criminal Homicide as a Situated Transaction. Social Problems 25:176186.

Massey, Douglas S. 2007. Categorically Unequal: The American Stratification System. New York: Russell Sage Foundation.

McAdam, Doug , Sidney Tarrow , and Charles Tilly . 2001. Dynamics of Contention. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.

McDermott, Monica and Frank L. Samson . 2005. White Racial and Ethnic Identity in the United States. Annual Review of Sociology 31:245261.

Omi, Michael and Howard Winant . 1994. Racial Formation in the United States: From the 1960s to the 1990s. New York: Routledge.

Papachristos, Andrew V. 2009. Murder by Structure: Dominance Relations and the Social Structure of Gang Homicide. American Journal of Sociology 115:74128.

Polletta, Francesca . 1998. It Was like a Fever Narrative and Identity in Social Protest. Social Problems 45:137159.

Rydgren, Jens . 2007. The Power of the Past: A Contribution to a Cognitive Sociology of Ethnic Conflict. Sociological Theory 25:225244.

Somers, Margaret R. 1994. The Narrative Constitution of Identity: A Relational and Network Approach. Theory and Society 23:605649.

Sumiala, Johanna . 2013. Media and Ritual: Death, Community and Everyday Life. New York: Routledge.

Swidler, Ann . 1986. Culture in Action: Symbols and Strategies. American Sociological Review 51:273286.

Tajfel, Henri . 1981. Human Groups and Social Categories: Studies in Social Psychology. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.

Tilly, Charles . 1978. From Mobilization to Revolution. Reading: Addison-Wesley.

Tilly, Charles . 1998. Durable Inequality. Berkeley: University of California Press.

Tilly, Charles . 2005. Identities, Boundaries, and Social Ties. Boulder: Paradigm.

Tolnay, Stewart E. and E. M. Beck . 1995. A Festival of Violence: An Analysis of Southern Lynchings, 1882-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

Weber, Max . 1978. Economy and Society: An Outline of Interpretive Sociology. Berkeley: University of California Press.

West, Candace and Sarah Fenstermaker . 1995. Doing Difference. Gender and Society 9:837.

Wimmer, Andreas . 2013. Ethic Boundary Making: Institutions, Power, Networks. New York: Oxford University Press.

From Slavery to Jim Crow

Alexander, Jeffrey C. 2004. Toward a Theory of Cultural Trauma. In Cultural Trauma and Collective Identity, edited by Jeffrey C. Alexander , Ron Eyerman , Bernard Giesen , Neil J. Smelser , and Piotr Sztompka , 130. Berkeley: University of California Press.

Alexander, Jeffrey C. 2010. The Performance of Politics: Obamas Victory and the Democratic Struggle for Power. New York: Oxford University Press.

Andrews, Eliza Frances . 1908. The War-Time Journal of a Georgia Girl, 1864-1865. New York: D. Appleton and Company.

Andrews, Sidney . 1866. Three Months among the Reconstructionists. The Atlantic Monthly 17:237246.

50 Ayers, Edward L. 1984. Vengeance and Justice: Crime and Punishment in the 19th-Century American South. New York: Oxford University Press.

Ayers, Edward L. 1992. The Promise of the New South: Life after Reconstruction. Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Baker, Bruce E. 2007. What Reconstruction Meant: Historical Memory in the American South. Charlottesville and London: University of Virginia Press.

Berg, Manfred . 2011. Popular Justice: A History of Lynching in America. Lanham: Ivan R. Dee.

Bolton, Charles C. 1993. Poor Whites of the Antebellum South: Tenants and Laborers in Central North Carolina and Northeast Mississippi. Durham and London: Duke University Press.

Brown, David . 2013. A Vagabonds Tale: Poor Whites, Herrenvolk Democracy, and the Value of Whiteness in the Late Antebellum South. The Journal of Southern History 79:799840.

Cell, John . 1982. The Highest Stage of White Supremacy: The Origins of Segregation in South Africa and the American South. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.

Chapman, John A. 1897. History of Edgefield County from the Earliest Settlement to 1897.

Newberry: E. H. Aull.

Chesnut, Mary Boykin . 1905. A Diary from Dixie, as Written by Mary Boykin Chesnut, edited by Isabella D. Martin and Myrta Lockett Avery . New York: D. Appleton and Company.

Cobb, James C. 1992. The Most Southern Place on Earth: The Mississippi Delta and the Roots of Regional Identity. New York: Oxford University Press.

Cobb, Thomas R. R. 1858. An Inquiry into the Law of Negro Slavery in the United States of America. Philadelphia: T. & J. W. Johnson & Co.; Savannah: W. Thorne Williams.

Collins, Randall . 1981. On the Microfoundations of Macrosociology. The American Journal of Sociology 86:9841014.

Dailey, Jane . 2000. Before Jim Crow: The Politics of Race in Postemancipation Virginia. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina.

Davis, Adrienne D. 1999. The Private Law of Race and Sex: An Antebellum Perspective. Stanford Law Review 51:221288.

Desmond, Matthew and Mustafa Emirbayer . 2009. What Is Racial Domination? Du Bois Review 6:335355.

Du Bois, W. E. Burghardt . 1935. Black Reconstruction: An Essay toward a History of the Part Which Black Folk Played in the Attempt to Reconstruct Democracy in America, 1860-1880. New York: Harcourt, Brace and Company.

Egerton, Douglas R. 2014. The Wars of Reconstruction: The Brief, Violent History of America's Most Progressive Era. New York: Bloomsbury.

Elkins, Stanley M. 1959. Slavery: A Problem in American Institutional and Intellectual Life. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Eyerman, Ron . 2001. Cultural Trauma: Slavery and the Formation of African American Identity. New York: Cambridge University Press.

Faust, Drew Gilpin . 1985. James Henry Hammond and the Old South: A Design for Mastery. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.

Feimster, Crystal Nicole . 2009. Southern Horrors: Women and the Politics of Rape and Lynching. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

Fitzhugh, George . 1854. Sociology for the South, or, the Failure of Free Society. Richmond: A. Morris.

Foner, Eric . 1988. Reconstruction: America's Unfinished Revolution, 1863-1877. New York: Harper Collins.

51 Ford, Lacy K. 2009. Deliver Us from Evil: The Slavery Question in the Old South. New York: Oxford University Press.

Fredrickson, George M. 1971. The Black Image in the White Mind: The Debate on Afro-American Character and Destiny, 1817-1914. New York: Harper and Row.

Genovese, Eugene D. 1969. The World the Slaveholders Made: Two Essays in Interpretation. New York: Pantheon Books.

Genovese, Eugene D. 1974. Roll, Jordan, Roll: The World the Slaves Made. New York: Pantheon Books.

Gilmore, Glenda Elizabeth . 1996. Gender and Jim Crow: Women and the Politics of White Supremacy in North Carolina, 1896-1920. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Goffman, Erving . 1959. The Presentation of Self in Everyday Life. New York: Doubleday.

Grady, Henry W. 1890. Henry W. Grady: His Life, Writings and Speeches, edited by Joel Chandler Harris . New York: Cassell.

Hadden, Sally E. 2001. Slave Patrols: Law and Violence in Virginia and the Carolinas. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

Hammond, James Henry . 1866. Selections from the Letters and Speeches of the Hon. James H. Hammond, of South Carolina. New York: Joh F Trow & CO.

Hampton, Wade . 1879. Ought the Negro to Be Disfranchised? Ought He to Have Been Enfranchised? Symposium with contributions by James G. Blaine , James A. Garfield , Montgomery Blair , L. Q. C. Lamar , Alexander H. Stephens , Thomas A. Hendricks , Wade Hampton , Wendell Phillips . The North American Review 128:225283.

Hundley, D. R. 1860. Social Relations in Our Southern States. New York: Henry B. Price.

Jacobson, Matthew Frye . 1998. Whiteness of a Different Color: European Immigrants and the Alchemy of Race. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

Kantrowitz, Stephen . 2000. Ben Tillman and the Reconstruction of White Supremacy. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

King, C. Alex . 1900. Speech of the Honorable Alex C. King: In Southern Society for the Promotion of the Study of Race Conditions and Problems in the South, Race Problems of the South: Report of the Proceedings of the First Annual Conference Held under the Auspices of the Southern Society for the Promotion of the Study of Race Conditions and Problems in the South, at Montgomery, Alabama, May 8, 9, 10, A.D. 1900. Richmond: B. F. Johnson.

Kousser, J. Morgan . 1974. The Shaping of Southern Politics: Suffrage Restriction and the Establishment of the One Party South, 1880-1910. New Haven: Yale University Press.

Levine, Bruce C. 2013. The Fall of the House of Dixie: The Civil War and the Social Revolution that Transformed the South. New York: Random House.

Link, William A. 2013. Atlanta, Cradle of the New South: Race and Remembering in the Civil Wars Aftermath. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Litwack, Leon F. 1998. Trouble in Mind: Black Southerners in the Age of Jim Crow. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.

Margo, Robert A. 1990. Race and Schooling in the South, 1880-1950: An Economic History. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

McGinty, Garnie W. 1941. Louisiana Redeemed: The Overthrow of Carpet-Bag Rule, 1876-1880. New Orleans: Pelican.

Otken, Charles H. 1894. The Ills of the South: Or Related Causes Hostile to the General Prosperity of the Southern People. New York and London: G. P. Putnam's Sons.

Patterson, Orlando . 1982. Slavery and Social Death: A Comparative Study. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

52 Patterson, Orlando . 1998. Rituals of Blood: Consequences of Slavery in Two American Centuries. New York: Basic Books.

Perman, Michael . 2001. Struggle for Mastery: Disfranchisement in the South, 1888-1908. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Perman, Michael . 2009. Pursuit of Unity: A Political History of the American South. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Pfeifer, Michael J. 2011. The Roots of Rough Justice: Origins of American Lynching. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

Rabinowitz, Howard N. 1992. The First New South, 1865-1920. Arlington Heights: Harlan Davidson.

Rable, George C. 1984. But There Was No Peace: The Role of Violence in the Politics of Reconstruction. Athens: University of Georgia Press.

Ransom, Roger L. and Richard Sutch . 1977. One Kind of Freedom: The Economic Consequences of Emancipation. New York: Cambridge University Press.

Redding, Kent . 2003. Making Race, Making Power: North Carolina's Road to Disfranchisement. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

Rosen, Hannah . 2009. Terror in the Heart of Freedom: Citizenship, Sexual Violence, and the Meaning of Race in the Postemancipation South. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Simms, Rupe . 2001. Controlling Images and the Gender Construction of Enslaved African Women. Gender and Society 15:879-897.

Smedley, Audrey . 2007. Race in North America: Origin and Evolution of a Worldview. Third Edition. Boulder: Westview Press.

Smith, Rogers M. 1997. Civic Ideals: Conflicting Visions of Citizenship in U.S. History. New Haven: Yale University Press.

Somers, Margaret R. 1994. The Narrative Constitution of Identity: A Relational and Network Approach. Theory and Society 23:605-649.

Swidler, Ann . 1986. Culture in Action: Symbols and Strategies. American Sociological Review 51:273-286.

Tindall, George Brown . 1952. South Carolina Negroes, 1877-1900. Columbia: University of South Carolina Press.

Trelease, Alan W. 1971. White Terror: The Ku Klux Klan Conspiracy and Southern Reconstruction. New York: Harper & Row.

West, Candace and Sarah Fenstermaker . 1995. Doing Difference. Gender and Society 9:837.

Williamson, Joel . 1984. The Crucible of Race: Black-White Relations in the American South since Emancipation. New York: Oxford University Press.

Wood, Amy Louise . 2009. Lynching and Spectacle: Witnessing Racial Violence in America, 1890-1940. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Woodman, Harold D. 1977. Sequel to Slavery: The New History Views the Postbellum South. The Journal of Southern History 43:523-554.

Woodward, C. Vann . 1951. Origins of the New South, 1877-1913. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.

Woodward, C. Vann . 1974. The Strange Career of Jim Crow. Third Revised Edition. New York: Oxford University Press.

Wyatt-Brown, Bertram . 1982. Southern Honor: Ethics and Behavior in the Old South. New York: Oxford University Press.

Lynching as Collective and Interpersonal Intergroup Violence

- Arnold, Edwin T. 2009. What Virtue There Is in Fire: Cultural Memory and the Lynching of Sam Hose. Athens: University of Georgia Press.
- Ayers, Edward L. 1984. Vengeance and Justice: Crime and Punishment in the 19th-Century American South. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Baker, Ray Stannard . 1908. Following the Color Line: An Account of Negro Citizenship in the American Democracy. New York: Doubleday, Page & Company.
- Banner, Stuart . 2002. The Death Penalty: An American History. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- Berg, Manfred . 2011. Popular Justice: A History of Lynching in America. Lanham: Ivan R. Dee.
- Brundage, W. Fitzhugh . 1993. Lynching in the New South: Georgia and Virginia, 1880-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Cutler, James Elbert . 1905. Lynch-law: An Investigation into the History of Lynching in the United States. New York: Longmans, Green, and Co.
- Fuoss, Kirk W. 1999. Lynching Performances, Theatres of Violence. Text and Performance Quarterly 19:137.
- Garland, David . 2005. Penal Excess and Surplus Meaning: Public Torture Lynchings in Twentieth-Century America. Law & Society Review 39:793833.
- Hadden, Sally E. 2001. Slave Patrols: Law and Violence in Virginia and the Carolinas. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- 70 Hale, Grace Elizabeth . 1998. Making Whiteness: The Culture of Segregation in the South, 1890-1940. New York: Vintage.
- Harris, J. William . 1995. Etiquette, Lynching, and Racial Boundaries in Southern History: A Mississippi Example. The American Historical Review 100:387410.
- Hart, Albert Bushnell . 1910. The Southern South. New York and London: D. Appleton and Company.
- Holmes, William F. 1969. Whitecapping: Agrarian Violence in Mississippi, 1902-1906. The Journal of Southern History 35:165185.
- Holmes, William F. 1974. Whitecapping: Anti-Semitism in the Populist Era. American Jewish Historical Quarterly 63:244261.
- Jean, Susan . 2005. Warranted Lynchings: Narratives of Mob Violence in White Southern Newspapers, 1880-1940. American Nineteenth Century History 6:351372.
- Litwack, Leon F. 1998. Trouble in Mind: Black Southerners in the Age of Jim Crow. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.
- McMillen, Neil R. 1989. Dark Journey: Black Mississippians in the Age of Jim Crow. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Moseley, Charlton and Frederick Brogdon . 1981. Lynching at Statesboro: The Story of Paul Reed and Will Cato. The Georgia Historical Quarterly 65:104118.
- Patterson, Orlando . 1998. Rituals of Blood: Consequences of Slavery in Two American Centuries. New York: Basic Civitas.
- Pfeifer, Michael J. 2004. Rough Justice: Lynching and American Society, 1874-1947. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Pfeifer, Michael J. 2011. The Roots of Rough Justice: Origins of American Lynching. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Raper, Arthur F. 1933. The Tragedy of Lynching. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Shay, Frank . 1938. Judge Lynch, His First Hundred Years. New York: Biblo and Tannen.
- Tolnay, Stewart E. and E. M. Beck . 1995. A Festival of Violence: An Analysis of Southern Lynchings, 1882-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Wells-Barnett, Ida B. 2014. On Lynchings. Mineola: Dover.
- Williamson, Joel . 1984. The Crucible of Race: Black-White Relations in the American South since Emancipation. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Wood, Amy Louise . 2009. Lynching and Spectacle: Witnessing Racial Violence in America, 1890-1940. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Wright, George C. 1990. Racial Violence in Kentucky, 1865-1940: Lynchings, Mob Rule, and Legal Lynchings. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.
- Young, Harvey . 2005. The Black Body as Souvenir in American Lynching. Theatre Journal 57:639657.

Lynching and the Making of the Jim Crow Color-line

- Alexander, Jeffrey C. 2003. The Meanings of Social Life: A Cultural Sociology. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Apel, Dora . 2004. Imagery of Lynching: Black Men, White Women, and the Mob. New Brunswick: Rutgers University Press.
- Arnold, Edwin T. 2009. What Virtue There Is in Fire: Cultural Memory and the Lynching of Sam Hose. Athens: University of Georgia Press.
- Baker, Ray Stannard . 1908. Following the Color Line: An Account of Negro Citizenship in the American Democracy. New York: Doubleday, Page & Company.
- Bardaglio, Peter W. 1994. Rape and the Law in the Old South: Calculated to Excite Indignation in Every Heart. The Journal of Southern History 60:749772.
- Beck, E. M. and Timothy Clark . 2002. Strangers, Community Miscreants, or Locals: Who Were the Black Victims of Mob Violence? Historical Methods 35:7784.
- Beck, E. M. and Stewart E. Tolnay . 1997. When Race Didn't Matter: Black and White Mob Violence Against Their Own Color. In W. F. Brundage (ed) Under Sentence of Death: Lynching in the South. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, pp. 132154.
- Bourdieu, Pierre . 1990. Photography: A Middle-Brow Art. Cambridge: Polity.
- 87 Brinton, Daniel G. 1890. Races and People: Lectures on the Science of Ethnography. New York: N. D. C. Hodges.
- Bruce, Philip A. 1889. The Plantation Negro as a Freeman: Observations on His Character, Condition, and Prospects in Virginia. New York: Putnam.
- Brundage, W. Fitzhugh . 1993. Lynching in the New South: Georgia and Virginia, 18801930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Cerulo, Karen A. 1998. Deciphering Violence: The Cognitive Structure of Right and Wrong. Psychology Press. New York and London: Routledge.
- Desmond, Matthew and Mustafa Emirbayer . 2009. What Is Racial Domination? Du Bois Review 6:335355.
- Dray, Philip . 2002. At the Hands of Persons Unknown: The Lynching of Black America. New York: Modern Library.
- Feimster, Crystal Nicole . 2009. Southern Horrors: Women and the Politics of Rape and Lynching. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- Genovese, Eugene D. 1974. Roll, Jordan, Roll: The World the Slaves Made. New York: Pantheon Books.
- Godshalk, David Fort . 2006. Veiled Visions: The 1906 Atlanta Race Riot and the Reshaping of American Race Relations. Chapel Hill: The University of North Carolina Press.
- Gould, Roger V. 2003. Collision of Wills: How Ambiguity about Social Rank Breeds Conflict. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Hale, Grace Elizabeth . 1998. Making Whiteness: The Culture of Segregation in the South, 18901940. New York: Vintage.
- Hall, Jacquelyn Dowd . 1979. Revolt against Chivalry: Jesse Daniel Ames and the Womens Campaign against Lynching. New York: Columbia University Press.
- Haygood, Atticus G. 1881. Our Brother in Black: His Freedom and His Future. New York: Phillips & Hunt.
- Haygood, Atticus G. 1889. Pleas for Progress. Nashville: Publishing House of the M. E. Church, South.
- Haygood, Atticus G. 1893. The Black Shadow in the South. Forum 41:167175.
- Hodes, Martha . 1997. White Women, Black Men: Illicit Sex in the Nineteenth-Century South. New Haven: Yale University Press.
- Jacobson, Matthew Frye . 1998. Whiteness of a Different Color: European Immigrants and the Alchemy of Race. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- Jean, Susan . 2005. Warranted Lynchings: Narratives of Mob Violence in White Southern Newspapers, 18801940. American Nineteenth Century History 6:351372.
- King, C. Alex . 1900. Speech of the Honorable Alex C. King: In Southern Society for the Promotion of the Study of Race Conditions and Problems in the South, Race Problems of the South: Report of the Proceedings of the First Annual Conference Held under the Auspices of the Southern Society for the Promotion of the Study of Race Conditions and Problems in the South, at Montgomery, Alabama, May 8, 9, 10, A.D. 1900. Richmond: B. F. Johnson.

Kurasawa, Fuyuki . 2004. Alexander and the Cultural Refounding of American Sociology. Thesis Eleven 79:5364.

Lamont, Michle , Stefan Beljean , and Matthew Clair . 2014. What Is Missing? Cultural Processes and Causal Pathways to Inequality. Socio-Economic Review 12:573608.

Litwack, Leon F. 1998. Trouble in Mind: Black Southerners in the Age of Jim Crow. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.

Loury, Glenn C. 2002. The Anatomy of Racial Inequality. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

88 McMillen, Neil R. 1989. Dark Journey: Black Mississippians in the Age of Jim Crow. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

Mixon, Gregory . 2005. The Atlanta Riot: Race, Class, and Violence in a New South City. Gainesville: University Press of Florida.

Muhammad, Khalil Gibran . 2010. The Condemnation of Blackness: Race, Crime, and the Making of Modern Urban America. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

Myrdal, Gunnar . 1944. An American Dilemma: The Negro Problem and Modern Democracy. New York and London: Harper & Brothers.

Ohl, Jessy J. and Jennifer E. Potter . 2013. United We Lynch: Post-Racism and the (Re) Membering of Racial Violence in Without Sanctuary: Lynching Photography in America . Southern Communication Journal 78:185201.

Pascoe, Peggy . 2009. What Comes Naturally: Miscegenation Law and the Making of Race in America. New York: Oxford University Press.

Perloff, Richard M. 2000. The Press and the Lynchings of African Americans. Journal of Black Studies 30:315330.

Smith, Shawn Michelle . 2004. Photography on the Color Line: W. E. B. Du Bois, Race, and Visual Culture. Durham: Duke University Press.

Sommerville, Diane Miller . 1995. The Rape Myth in the Old South Reconsidered. The Journal of Southern History 61:481518.

Sommerville, Diane Miller . 2004. Rape and Race in the Nineteenth-Century South. Chapel Hill: The University of North Carolina Press.

Swidler, Ann . 1986. Culture in Action: Symbols and Strategies. American Sociological Review 51:273286.

Wells-Barnett, Ida B. 2014. On Lynchings. Mineola: Dover.

White, Walter Francis . 1948. A Man Called White: The Autobiography of Walter White. New York: Viking.

Whites, LeeAnn . 1992. Rebecca Latimer Felton and the Wifes Farm: The Class and Racial Politics of Gender Reform. The Georgia Historical Quarterly 76:354372.

Williamson, Joel . 1984. The Crucible of Race: Black-White Relations in the American South since Emancipation. New York: Oxford University Press.

Wimmer, Andreas . 2013. Ethic Boundary Making: Institutions, Power, Networks. New York: Oxford University Press.

Wood, Amy Louise . 2009. Lynching and Spectacle: Witnessing Racial Violence in America, 1890-1940. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Wright, George C. 1990. Racial Violence in Kentucky, 1865-1940: Lynchings, Mob Rule, and Legal Lynchings. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.

Wyatt-Brown, Bertram . 1982. Southern Honor: Ethics and Behavior in the Old South. New York: Oxford University Press.

Lynching and the Making of the Solid White South

Alexander, Jeffrey C. 2004. Toward a Theory of Cultural Trauma. In Cultural Trauma and Collective Identity, edited by Jeffrey C. Alexander , Ron Eyerman , Bernard Giesen , Neil J. Smelser , and Piotr Sztompka , 130. Berkeley: University of California Press.

Anderson, Benedict . 1991. Imagined Communities: Reflections on the Origins and Spread of Nationalism. London and New York: Verso.

Archer, William . 1910. Through Afro-America: An English Reading of the Race Problem. London: Chapman & Hall.

Arellano, Manuel and Stephen Bond . 1991. Some Tests of Specification for Panel Data: Monte Carlo Evidence and an Application to Employment Equations. The Review of Economic Studies 58:277297.

Arellano, Manuel and Olympia Bover . 1995. Another Look at the Instrumental Variable Estimation of Error-Components Models. Journal of Econometrics 68:2951.

- Ayers, Edward L. 1984. Vengeance and Justice: Crime and Punishment in the 19th-Century American South. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Ayers, Edward L. 1992. The Promise of the New South: Life after Reconstruction. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Baker, Bruce E. 2007. What Reconstruction Meant: Historical Memory in the American South. Charlottesville and London: University of Virginia Press.
- Baker, Paula . 1984. The Culture of Politics in the Late Nineteenth Century: Community and Political Behavior in Rural New York. Journal of Social History 18:167193.
- Bartley, Numan V. 1990. The Creation of Modern Georgia. Athens: University of Georgia Press.
- Beck E. M. , James Massey , and Stewart E. Tolnay . 1989. The Gallows, the Mob, and the Vote: Lethal Sanctioning of Blacks in North Carolina and Georgia, 1882-1930. Law & Society Review 23:317331.
- Blundell, Richard and Stephen Bond . 1998. Initial Conditions and Moment Restrictions in Dynamic Panel Data Models. Journal of Econometrics 87:115143.
- Brambor, Thomas , William Roberts Clark , and Matt Golder . 2006. Understanding Interaction Models: Improving Empirical Analyses. Political Analysis 14:6382.
- Brubaker, Rogers . 2004. Ethnicity without Groups. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
- Brundage, W. Fitzhugh . 1993. Lynching in the New South: Georgia and Virginia, 1880-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Chwe, Michael Suk-Young . 2001. Rational Ritual: Culture, Coordination, and Common Knowledge. Princeton: Princeton University Press.
- Clubb, Jerome M. , William H. Flanigan , and Nancy H. Zingale . 2006. Electoral Data for Counties in the United States: Presidential and Congressional Races, 1840-1972 114[Computer file]. ICPSR08611-v1. Ann Arbor: Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research.
- Collins, Randall . 2004. Interaction Ritual Chains. Princeton: Princeton University Press.
- Cunningham, David . 2013. Klansville, USA: The Rise and Fall of the Civil Rights-era Ku Klux Klan. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Davis, William C. 1996. The Lost Cause: Myths and Realities of the Confederacy. Lawrence: University Press of Kansas.
- Downs, Gregory P. 2011. Declarations of Dependence: The Long Reconstruction of Popular Politics in the South, 1861-1908. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina.
- Eyerman, Ron . 2001. Cultural Trauma: Slavery and the Formation of African American Identity. New York: Cambridge University Press.
- Foster, Gaines M. 1987. Ghosts of the Confederacy: Defeat, the Lost Cause, and the Emergence of the New South, 1865-1913. New York: Oxford University Press.
- Garland, David . 2005. Penal Excess and Surplus Meaning: Public Torture Lynchings in Twentieth-Century America. Law & Society Review 39:793833.
- Gould, Roger V. 1995. Insurgent Identities: Class, Community and Protest in Paris from 1848 to the Commune. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Gould, Roger V. 2003. Collision of Wills: How Ambiguity about Social Rank Breeds Conflict. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- Haines, Michael R. 2006. Historical, Demographic, Economic, and Social Data: The United States, 1790-2000 [Computer file]. ICPSR02896-v2. Ann Arbor: Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research.
- Hale, Grace Elizabeth . 1998. Making Whiteness: The Culture of Segregation in the South, 1890-1940. New York: Vintage.
- Kantrowitz, Stephen . 2000. Ben Tillman and the Reconstruction of White Supremacy. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.
- Kousser, J. Morgan . 1974. The Shaping of Southern Politics: Suffrage Restriction and the Establishment of the One Party South, 1880-1910. New Haven: Yale University Press.
- Lee, Heath Hardage . 2014. Winnie Davis: Daughter of the Lost Cause. Lincoln: Potomac Books.
- Litwack, Leon F. 1998. Trouble in Mind: Black Southerners in the Age of Jim Crow. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.
- McAdam, Doug . 1982. Political Process and the Development of Black Insurgency, 1930-1970. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
- McAdam, Doug , Sidney Tarrow , and Charles Tilly . 2001. Dynamics of Contention. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.
- McCarthy, John D. and Mayer N. Zald . 1977. Resource Mobilization and Social Movements: A Partial Theory. American Journal of Sociology 82:12121241.
- McVeigh, Rory . 2009. The Rise of the Ku Klux Klan: Right-wing Movements and National Politics. Minneapolis and London: University of Minnesota Press.

McVeigh, Rory , Michael R. Welch , and Thorodddur Bjarnason . 2003. Hate Crime Reporting as a Successful Social Movement Outcome. American Sociological Review 68:843867.

Nevels, Cynthia Skove . 2007. Lynching to Belong: Claiming Whiteness through Racial Violence. College Station: Texas A&M University Press.

Olick, Jeffrey K. and Joyce Robbins . 1998. Social Memory Studies: From Collective Memory to the Historical Sociology of Mnemonic Practices. Annual Review of Sociology 24:105140.

Perman, Michael . 2001. Struggle for Mastery: Disfranchisement in the South, 1888-1908. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

115 Perman, Michael . 2009. Pursuit of Unity: A Political History of the American South. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Pope, Whitney and Charles Ragin . 1977. Mechanical Solidarity, Repressive Justice, and Lynchings in Louisiana. American Sociological Review 42:363369.

Raper, Arthur F. 1933. The Tragedy of Lynching. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Redding, Kent . 2003. Making Race, Making Power: North Carolinas Road to Disfranchisement. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

Snow, David A. and Robert D. Benford . 1988. Ideology, Frame Resonance and Participant Mobilization. International Social Movement Research 1:197218.

Staggenborg, Suzanne . 1993. Critical Events and the Mobilization of the Pro-Choice Movement. Research in Political Sociology 6:319345.

Tilly, Charles . 1978. From Mobilization to Revolution. Reading: Addison-Wesley.

Tolnay, Stewart E. and E. M. Beck . 1995. A Festival of Violence: An Analysis of Southern Lynchings, 1882-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

U.S. Bureau of the Census . 1913. Thirteenth Census, 1910. Volume 5. Washington, DC: Government Printing Office.

U.S. Bureau of the Census . 1922. Fourteenth Census, 1920. Volume 5. Washington, DC: Government Printing Office.

U.S. Bureau of the Census . 1932a. Fifteenth Census, 1930. Volume 2. Washington, DC: Government Printing Office.

U.S. Bureau of the Census . 1932b. Fifteenth Census, 1930. Volume 3. Washington, DC: Government Printing Office.

Wawro, Gregory . 2002. Estimating Dynamic Panel Data Models in Political Science. Political Analysis 10:2548.

Williamson, Joel . 1984. The Crucible of Race: Black-White Relations in the American South since Emancipation. New York: Oxford University Press.

Wilson, Charles Reagan . 1980. Baptized in Blood: The Religion of the Lost Cause, 1865-1920. Athens: University of Georgia Press.

Wood, Amy Louise . 2009. Lynching and Spectacle: Witnessing Racial Violence in America, 1890-1940. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Wood, Amy Louise and Susan V. Donaldson . 2008. Lynchings Legacy in American Culture. The Mississippi Quarterly 61:525.

Woodward, C. Vann . 1951. Origins of the New South, 1877-1913. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.

Woodward, C. Vann . 1974. The Strange Career of Jim Crow. Third Revised Edition. New York: Oxford University Press.

Zelizer, Barbie . 1995. Reading the Past against the Grain: The Shape of Memory Studies. Critical Studies in Mass Communication 12:214239.

Lynching, Interracial Status Competition, and Social White Identities

Allison, Paul . 2001. Missing Data. Thousand Oaks: Sage.

Ayers, Edward L. 1984. Vengeance and Justice: Crime and Punishment in the 19th-Century American South. New York: Oxford University Press.

Ayers, Edward L. 1992. The Promise of the New South: Life after Reconstruction. Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Baker, Ray Stannard . 1908. Following the Color Line: An Account of Negro Citizenship in the American Democracy. New York: Doubleday, Page & Company.

Blau, Peter M. and Otis Dudley Duncan . 1967. The American Occupational Structure. New York: Wiley.

Brubaker, Rogers. 2004. Ethnicity without Groups. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

Brundage, W. Fitzhugh . 1993. Lynching in the New South: Georgia and Virginia, 1880-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

Burke, Peter J. and Jan E. Stets . 2009. Identity Theory. New York: Oxford University Press.

Collins, Randall . 2000. Situational Stratification: A Micro-Macro Theory of Inequality. Sociological Theory 18:1743.

Collins, Randall . 2004. Interaction Ritual Chains. Princeton: Princeton University Press.

Cone, James H. 2011. The Cross and the Lynching Tree. New York: Orbis.

Dailey, Jane . 2000. Before Jim Crow: The Politics of Race in Postemancipation Virginia. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina.

Davis, Allison , Burleigh B. Gardner , and Mary R. Gardner . 1941. Deep South: A Social Anthropological Study of Caste and Class. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Dollard, John . 1937. Caste and Class in a Southern Town. New Haven: Yale University Press.

Doyle, Bertram Wilbur . 1937. The Etiquette of Race Relations in the South: A Study in Social Control. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Du Bois, W. E. Burghardt . 1920. Darkwater: Voices from within the Veil. New York: Harcourt, Brace and Howe.

137 Du Bois, W. E. Burghardt . 1923. The Superior Race (An Essay). The Smart Set 70:5560.

DuRocher, Kristina . 2011. Raising Racists: The Socialization of White Children in the Jim Crow South. Lexington: University Press of Kentucky.

Fischer, David Hackett . 1989. Albions Seed: Four British Folkways in America. New York: Oxford University Press.

Foner, Eric . 1988. Reconstruction: Americas Unfinished Revolution, 1863-1877. New York: Harper Collins.

Gerteis, Joseph . 2007. Class and the Color Line: Interracial Class Coalition in the Knights of Labor and the Populist Movement. Durham: Duke University Press.

Goffman, Erving . 1959. The Presentation of Self in Everyday Life. New York: Doubleday.

Goffman, Erving . 1967. Interaction Ritual: Essays on Face-to-Face Behavior. New York: Pantheon.

Greenberg, Kenneth S. 1985. Masters and Statesmen: The Political Culture of American Slavery. Baltimore: Johns Hopkins University Press.

Gullickson, Aaron . 2010. Racial Boundary Formation at the Dawn of Jim Crow: The Determinants and Effects of Black/Mulatto Occupational Differences in the United States, 1880. American Journal of Sociology 116:187231.

Harris, J. William . 1995. Etiquette, Lynching, and Racial Boundaries in Southern History: A Mississippi Example. The American Historical Review 100:387410.

Hechter, Michael . 1978. Group Formation and the Cultural Division of Labor. American Journal of Sociology 84:293318.

Hogg, Michael A. , Deborah J. Terry , and Katherine M. White . 1995. A Tale of Two Theories: A Critical Comparison of Identity Theory with Social Identity Theory. Social Psychology Quarterly 58:255269.

Hout, Michael and Thomas A. DiPrete . 2006. What We Have Learned: RC28s Contributions to Knowledge about Social Stratification. Research into Social Stratification and Mobility 24:120.

Johnson, Charles S. 1943. Backgrounds to Patterns of Negro Segregation. New York: Thomas Y. Crowell.

Johnson, Clifton . 1905. Highways and Byways of the South. New York: MacMillan.

Kelley, Robin D. G. 1993. We Are Not What We Seem: Rethinking Black Working-Class Opposition in the Jim Crow South. The Journal of American History 80:75112.

Litwack, Leon F. 1979. Been in the Storm So Long: The Aftermath of Slavery. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.

Litwack, Leon F. 1998. Trouble in Mind: Black Southerners in the Age of Jim Crow. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.

Loveman, Mara . 1999a. Making Race and Nation in the United States, South Africa, and Brazil: Taking Making Seriously. Theory and Society 28:903927.

McWhiney, Grady . 1988. Cracker Culture: Celtic Ways in the Old South. Tuscaloosa: University of Alabama Press.

Nisbett, Richard E. and Dov Cohen . 1996. Culture of Honor: The Psychology of Violence in the South. Boulder: Westview.

Olzak, Susan . 1992. The Dynamics of Ethnic Competition and Conflict. Stanford: Stanford University Press.

Painter, Nell Irvin . 1976. Exodusters: Black Migration to Kansas after Reconstruction. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.

Patterson, Orlando . 1982. Slavery and Social Death: A Comparative Study. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

138 Redding, Kent . 2003. Making Race, Making Power: North Carolinas Road to Disfranchisement. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

Ritterhouse, Jennifer . 2006. Growing up Jim Crow: How Black and White Southern Children Learned Race. Chapel Hill: The University of North Carolina Press.

Ruggles, Steven J. Trent Alexander , Katie Genadek , Ronald Goeken , Matthew B. Schroeder , and Matthew Sobek . 2010. Integrated Public Use Microdata Series: Version 5.0 [Machine-readable database]. Minneapolis: University of Minnesota.

Smith, Albert C. 1985. Southern Violence Reconsidered: Arson as Protest in Black-Belt Georgia, 1865-1910. The Journal of Southern History 51:527-564.

Sobek, Matthew . 1996. Work, Status, and Income: Men in the American Occupational Structure since the Late Nineteenth Century. Social Science History 20:169-207.

Street, Julian . 1917. American Adventures: A Second Trip Abroad at Home. New York: Century.

Tolnay, Stewart E. and E. M. Beck . 1995. A Festival of Violence: An Analysis of Southern Lynchings, 1882-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

von Hippel, Paul T. 2009. How to Impute Interactions, Squares, and Other Transformed Variables. Sociological Methodology 39:265-291.

Weber, Max . 1978. Economy and Society: An Outline of Interpretive Sociology. Berkley: University of California Press.

West, Candace and Sarah Fenstermaker . 1995. Doing Difference. Gender and Society 9:837.

Wimmer, Andreas . 2013. Ethic Boundary Making: Institutions, Power, Networks. New York: Oxford University Press.

Wood, Amy Louise . 2009. Lynching and Spectacle: Witnessing Racial Violence in America, 1890-1940. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Woodward, C. Vann . 1951. Origins of the New South, 1877-1913. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.

Wyatt-Brown, Bertram . 1982. Southern Honor: Ethics and Behavior in the Old South. New York: Oxford University Press.

Lynching, Jim Crow, and Beyond

Ayers, Edward L. 1992. The Promise of the New South: Life after Reconstruction. Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Brehens, Angela , Christopher Uggen , and Jeff Manza . 2003. Ballot Manipulation and the Menace of Negro Domination: Racial Threat and Felon Disfranchisement in the United States, 1850-2002. American Journal of Sociology 109:559-605.

Cobb, James C. 2005. The Brown Decision, Jim Crow, and Southern Identity. Athens: University of Georgia Press.

Creech, James C. , Jay Corzine , and Lin Huff-Corzine . 1989. Theory Testing and Lynching: Another Look at The Power Threat Hypothesis. Social Forces 67:626-630.

Cunningham, David and Benjamin T. Phillips . 2007. Contexts for Mobilization: Spatial Settings and Klan Presence in North Carolina, 1964-1966. American Journal of Sociology 113:781-814.

Du Bois, W. E. Burghardt . 1935. Black Reconstruction: An Essay toward a History of the Part Which Black Folk Played in the Attempt to Reconstruct Democracy in America, 1860-1880. New York: Harcourt, Brace and Company.

Durso, Rachel M. and David Jacobs . 2013. The Determinants of the Number of White Supremacist Groups: A Pooled Time-Series Analysis. Social Problems 60:128-144.

Foner, Eric . 2005. Forever Free: The Story of Emancipation and Reconstruction. New York: Alfred A. Knopf.

Garland, David . 2010. Peculiar Institution: Americas Death Penalty in an Age of Abolition. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

Giddings, Paula J. 2008. Ida: A Sword among Lions: Ida B. Wells and the Campaign against Lynching. New York: Amistad.

Gould, Roger V. 2003. Collision of Wills: How Ambiguity about Social Rank Breeds Conflict. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Grant, Donald L. 1975. The Anti-Lynching Movement, 1883-1932. San Francisco: Rand.

Hall, Jacquelyn Dowd . 1979. Revolt against Chivalry: Jesse Daniel Ames and the Womens Campaign against Lynching. New York: Columbia University Press.

Hill, Karlos . 2016. Beyond the Rope: The Impact of Lynching on Black Culture and Memory. New York: Cambridge University Press.

Jacobs, David and Jason T. Carmichael . 2001. The Politics of Punishment across Time and Space: A Pooled Time-Series Analysis of Imprisonment Rates. Social Forces 80:6189.

Jacobs, David and Jason T. Carmichael . 2002. The Political Sociology of the Death Penalty: A Pooled Time-Series Analysis. American Sociological Review 67:109131.

Jacobs, David , Jason T. Carmichael , and Stephanie L. Kent . 2005. Vigilantism, Current Racial Threat, and Death Sentences. American Sociological Review 70:656677.

Johnson, Kimberley . 2010. Reforming Jim Crow: Southern Politics and State in the Age before Brown. New York: Oxford University Press.

King, Ryan D. , Steven F. Messner , and Robert D. Baller . 2009. Contemporary Hate Crimes, Law Enforcement, and the Legacy of Racial Violence. American Sociological Review 74:291315.

Kirby, Jack Temple . 1972. Darkness at the Dawning: Race and Reform in the Progressive South. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott.

Kousser, J. Morgan . 1974. The Shaping of Southern Politics: Suffrage Restriction and the Establishment of the One Party South, 1880-1910. New Haven: Yale University Press.

Loury, Glenn C. 2002. The Anatomy of Racial Inequality. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

149 Manza, Jeff and Christopher Uggen . 2006. Locked Out: Felon Disenfranchisement and American Democracy. New York: Oxford University Press.

Massey, Douglas S. 2007. Categorically Unequal: The American Stratification System. New York: Russell Sage Foundation.

McDermott, Monica and Frank L. Samson . 2005. White Racial and Ethnic Identity in the United States. Annual Review of Sociology 31:245261.

McFeely, William S. 1997. Afterword. In Under Sentence of Death: Lynching in the South, edited by W. Fitzhugh Brundage , 318-321. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Messner, Steven F. , Robert D. Baller , and Matthew P. Zevenbergen . 2005. The Legacy of Lynching and Southern Homicide. American Sociological Review 70:633655.

Meyer, John W. and Brian Rowan . 1977. Institutionalized Organizations: Formal Structure as Myth and Ceremony. The American Journal of Sociology 83:340363.

Muhammad, Khalil Gibran . 2010. The Condemnation of Blackness: Race, Crime, and the Making of Modern Urban America. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.

Murphy, Edgar Gardner . 1904. Problems of the Present South. New York: Macmillan.

Myrdal, Gunnar . 1944. An American Dilemma: The Negro Problem and Modern Democracy. New York and London: Harper & Brothers.

Perman, Michael . 2009. Pursuit of Unity: A Political History of the American South. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press.

Russell, Kathryn K. 1998. The Color of Crime: Racial Hoaxes, White Fear, Black Protectionism, Police Harassment, and Other Macroaggressions. New York: New York University Press.

Tilly, Charles . 1998. Durable Inequality. Berkeley: University of California Press.

Tolnay, Stewart E. and E. M. Beck . 1995. A Festival of Violence: An Analysis of Southern Lynchings, 1882-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.

Wacquant, Loic . 2001. Deadly Symbiosis: When Ghetto and Prison Meet and Mesh. Punishment and Society 3:95134.

Waldrep, Christopher . 2009. African Americans Confront Lynching. Lanham: Rowman & Littlefield.

Western, Bruce . 2006. Punishment and Inequality in America. New York: Russell Sage.

Williams, Kidada E. 2012. They Left Great Marks On Me: African American Testimonies of Racial Violence from Emancipation to World War I. New York: New York University Press.

Woodward, C. Vann . 1951. Origins of the New South, 1877-1913. Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press.

Woodward, C. Vann . 1974. The Strange Career of Jim Crow. Third Revised Edition. New York: Oxford University Press.

Zangrando, Robert L. 1980. The NAACP Crusade against Lynching, 1909-1950. Philadelphia: Temple University Press.

References

- Box-Steffensmeier, Janet M. , Suzanna De Boef , and Kyle A. Joyce . 2007. Event Dependence and Heterogeneity in Duration Models: The Conditional Frailty Model. Political Analysis 15:237256.
- Box-Steffensmeier, Janet M. and Bradford S. Jones . 2004. Event History Modeling: A Guide for Social Scientists. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.
- Box-Steffensmeier, Janet M. , Dan Reiter , and Christopher Zorn . 2003. Nonproportional Hazards and Event History Analysis in International Relations. Journal of Conflict Resolution 47:3353.
- Box-Steffensmeier, Janet M. and Christopher Zorn . 2002. Duration Models for Repeated Events. Journal of Politics 64:10691094.
- Brundage, W. Fitzhugh . 1993. Lynching in the New South: Georgia and Virginia, 1880-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Cox, D. R. 1972. Regression Models and Life Tables. Journal of the Royal Statistical Society. Series B 34:187220.
- Garoutte, Lisa . 2007. Lynching in the United States South: Incorporating the Historical Record on Race, Class, and Gender. PhD Dissertation, Ohio State University.
- Golub, Jonathan and Bernard Steunenberg . 2007. How Time Affects EU Decision-Making. European Union Politics 8:555566.
- Landis, Richard and Gary Koch . 1977. The Measurement of Observer Agreement for Categorical Data. Biometrics 33:159174.
- 161 Licht, Amanda A. 2011. Change Comes with Time: Substantive Interpretation of Nonproportional Hazards in Event History Analysis. Political Analysis 19:227243.
- McAdam, Doug and Yang Su . 2002. The War at Home: Antiwar Protests and Congressional Voting, 1965 to 1973. American Sociological Review 67:696721.
- Pfeifer, J. Michael . 2004. Rough Justice: Lynching and American Society, 1874-1947. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.
- Soule, Sarah A. 1992. Populism and Black Lynching in Georgia, 1890-1900. Social Forces 71:431449.
- Tolnay, Stewart E. and E. M. Beck . 1995. A Festival of Violence: An Analysis of Southern Lynchings, 1882-1930. Urbana and Chicago: University of Illinois Press.